

Warrant has 13 articles

by Arlene Surprenant
Thirteen articles, including four rezoning articles and three asking to sell town owned land despite a three year moratorium, will occupy voters at April's town meeting.

Petitioner Daniel Fonzi of Danco Development Co. asks voters to rezone almost 46 acres of land from R60 to PRD zoning for 124 condominium units. The land is on the westerly side of Andover Street. Previous attempts to bring condos to Wilmington have been unsuccessful.

Developer Jay Tighe seeks to rezone 23 acres on the west side of Main Street from R20 and R60 to General Industry. John Forrest of Aldrich Road seeks to rezone approximately 3.85 acres of land by Lowell Street from R20 to High Density Business.

In another attempt, Al Fiorenza will try to rezone 7.25 acres of land off West Street from R20 to General Business.

Even though the moratorium placed on town owned land in April 1985 has another year to go, three petitioners hope to convince voters to allow the sale of certain parcels of land for various reasons.

Michael Tyner of Railroad Avenue asks residents to authorize the sale of town owned land considered unbuildable to interested abutters. According to the petitioner, this would free land which has no nominal value for sale to abutters who are looking to build home additions, garages, and extended septic systems.

In this vein, Capt. Larz Neilson of High Street hopes voters will allow selectmen to sell him a parcel of town owned land by Truman Road so he may extend a planned septic system and have a right of way for water.

Elaine Tung of Luten and Luten in Burlington asks voters to sell town owned land to abutters James and Cynthia Laciano of Aldrich Road.

Betty Bigwood of Chestnut Street has put in many hours trying to designate some of Wilmington's roads as "scenic." In two separate articles, she petitions residents to accept scenic roads as allowed under Mass. General Law and asks that they accept the planning board's recommendation to designate Chestnut Street and Hillside Way as scenic roads.

Larry Curtis hopes town voters will appropriate $5,000 to establish a Wilmington Home Access Assistance Program. Such a program would enable the Handicapped Affairs Commission to provide access to needy handicapped residents through financial assistance for such things as wheelchair ramps.

Both State Rep. James Miceli and Principal Assessor Anthony Krzeminski seek similar ends through their articles. Miceli wants voters to accept Clause 17D of MGL which states real property occupied by widows not be included in computing the whole estate for the purpose of applying for a property tax exemption. Krzeminski asks the same thing for senior citizens over 70 years of age.

Selectman Dan Ballou hopes residents will amend the Classification of Residential Use-Dwelling Conversion section of the zoning bylaw. The amended bylaw would allow single family homes existing prior to April 25, 1987, to be altered and used for not more than two dwelling units.

The annual town meeting will be held Saturday, April 25.

All that remains
Legion Hall stands in ruins after a three-alarm fire early Tuesday morning. The 139-year-old building will have to be torn down.

Legion Hall destroyed by fire

Legion Hall in Wilmington is a total loss after a three-alarm fire ripped through the 139-year-old building late Monday night.

Fire Chief Dan Wandell said the building will have to be torn down. He estimated damage at $250,000.

The fire started in the back of the building near the bar, shortly before midnight. Wandell said the cause of the fire was an overloaded extension cord.

The fire was discovered just before midnight by Officer Larry Redding, who was returning to the police station at the close of the 4 p.m. to midnight shift.

The fire department was notified exactly at midnight. Help was summoned from Reading, North Reading, Woburn and Tewksbury.

The fire was not brought under control for three hours, and it was 8:54 a.m. before the "all-out" was sounded. Firefighters were hampered by near-zero temperatures.

Officers of American Legion Post 136 met on Tuesday evening to begin planning how the post will cope with the situation. The first concern was for the Boy Scout troop and Cub Scout pack sponsored by the post. The Scouts lost most of their gear, including tents and flags, in the fire.

A fund-raising dance has been scheduled for the Scouts on Fri., March 20 at the Sons of Italy Hall.

American Legion officials are scheduled to meet with selectmen on Monday night to discuss further plans.

The first record of the building is about 1848, when it was the place in which wooden pumps were manufactured by Cyrus Adams, whose wife was Susan Maria Morrill, a great-granddaughter of the Rev. Isaac Morrill.

The building was used for the town meetings in the latter part of the Civil War, after the church had burned down. Sometime about 1875 it was the site of experiments for air brakes, for railroads, which may have been viewed by railroad conductor George Westinghouse.

In the 1890's the building was divided into four apartments, side by side, with two floors in each apartment. One family to live there was Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cady, about 1898.

About the end of World War I there was a Catholic Club in Wilmington, which had regular meetings in the building. The members were a lively group who would hire the Grange Hall for staging theatricals.

The Wilmington Post of American Legion, which had been meeting in the town hall, took over the quarters about 1930.

School committee race heats up

by Arlene Surprenant
With only two weeks left to pull nomination papers for the April 18 town election, interest is heating up in the three open seats on the Wilmington School Committee.

Incumbent Bridget Zukas of McDonald Road is seeking another three year term on the board. Other contestants in the race for the two three year seats are Joanne Neale, Webber Street; Andrea Paglia, Bond Street; and James Demos, Hopkins Street. Neale is currently president of the Shawsheen Elementary School PAC. Paglia is also an active member of that PAC and editor of the school newsletter. Demos is a past member of the school committee.

Hoping for election to the two year seat left vacant by the untimely death of Mitchell Spirits is Spirits' daughter Suzanne Cushing and James Babineau of McDonald Road.

In the race for two open seats on the Wilmington Board of Selectmen are incumbent James Stewart of Roosevelt Road; Anthony Accardi, Scaltrito Drive; Carl Backman, Lawrence Street; and Michael McCoy, Lowell Street. The three challengers all come with experience on other town boards. Accardi presently serves on the school committee. Backman is a member of the redevelopment authority, and McCoy is a member of the planning board.

Three other candidates are running unopposed for seats on other boards. William Strob, Sr., of Mystic Avenue is seeking re-election to the housing authority for another five year term. Vaughn Surprenant of Reed Street is in the running for re-election to the five year seat on the redevelopment authority. Michael Cairra of Fletcher Lane is hoping to be re-elected to a one year term as town moderator.

Ambulance response time sparks question of command judgement

The daughter of the late Mitchell Spirits has requested an investigation into a 13-minute delay in response time by the Wilmington Fire Department on the night of Spirits' death, Jan. 24.

Spirits, a member of the Wilmington School Committee, died of a heart attack.

Spirits' daughter, Suzanne Cushing, wrote a letter last week to Rocco DePasquale requesting the selectmen to delve into the matter.

On the night Spirits died, his wife called the fire department at 11:33 p.m. At the time of the call, the ambulance was on a mutual aid call to Tewksbury. The North Reading ambulance was already on the way to Wilmington for another call. The Reading ambulance was summoned, and did not arrive at the Spirits home on Truman Road until 11:46 p.m.

In an interview with the Town Crier, Mrs. Cushing said that her problem was not with the department as a whole. She was, she said, questioning the command judgement exercised that night.

Kindergarten day extension put off for one year

Wilmington's School Superintendent Robert Horan last Wednesday recommended expansion of the elementary school computer program and elected to put off, for one year, a voluntary program to extend the kindergarten day.

The brief discussion among school committee members was almost an anti-climax after months of public meetings and extensive research on the goals by Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski.

Committeemen agreed with Horan's computer recommendation. However, because of uncertainty over final budget figures, they decided to postpone a vote until the school budget is finalized.

Bridget Zukas was adamant they shouldn't vote on the $76,184 program until they know their priorities. Shirley Callan agreed, saying 5.5 percent of the budget will be increased because of the new teachers' contract and "anything over that will really increase it."

According to Horan, his recommendation would allot $32,184 for 12 to 15 additional computers and $44,000 for necessary staff to put the program into effect. The funds for the computers would only be forthcoming if residents approve a warrant article covering audiovisual aids, computers, and other equipment at April's town meeting.

In a close three to two vote, members agreed to delay the pilot kindergarten program for one year after Horan explained he needed more time to implement the program so it would be done right. He pointed out with several upcoming changes in the system, including the housing of sixth graders at the intermediate schools and the return of students in the SEEM Collaborative, he had little time to devote to another change.

Some members opposed the delay.

Tony Accardi, for instance, said residents had been assured there would be enough space to put the program into effect and he had a problem with "getting the facts straight."

Both Shirley Callan and Bob Peterson voted against any postponement because of the amount of time put in by Dembowski and the fact that, so far, the committee had only implemented one out of the three goals explored by the assistant superintendent.

"I feel as though we took people to the store and showed them a good thing then said it's not going to be offered anyway," said Callan.

Zukas was in favor of the delays saying, though she does support the program, she didn't think they could afford it at this time. She also asked for and received support of fellow members to add an additional kindergarten class in each school. This would avoid overcrowding and would only be done if there were sufficient funds in the budget.

TO PENSIONS?

The 1986 Tax Reform Act makes some basic changes in who gets what and when under company pension plans. There's better coverage for rank-and-file workers, tougher rules for top executives.

Ordinary workers will now be fully vested within 5 years of service, down from the old 10-year rule. If pension payouts are keyed to Social Security benefits, they cannot be reduced by more than 50 percent.

There are tougher rules on lump-sum distributions from pension or profit-sharing plans, limiting the income-averaging method. For most people, it may be better to roll the money over into an I.R.A.

Sharpest reductions are in allowable benefits to executives who retire early on defined benefits plans. Some firms have unfunded plans to make up the difference, but these are unsecured. Expect to see some renegotiations at the top.

Chased car

This 1968 Dodge came out much worse for the wear after a chase which ended in East Billerica in a clump of trees. Along the way, the driver allegedly hit another car, pushing it off the road. The car is shown behind the Wilmington police station, where it was towed after the driver was arrested. Gary Wedge faces a total of 15 charges in relation to the incident.

Youth faces 15 charges after car chase, crash

Wilmington police arrested a 19-year old youth after a Saturday morning car chase ended in a crash in East Billerica.

Gary Wedge was charged with a total of 15 offenses by Officer Jim Peterson. Peterson first attempted to stop Wedge at 11:10 a.m. near the Shawsheen School in Wilmington for not having an inspection sticker. Instead of stopping, Wedge allegedly fled toward Billerica on Route 129, at speeds up to 90 miles per hour.

At one point, he rammed a car from behind, injuring the driver. Michael Mead of Bedford complained of neck and back injuries. The impact of the collision tore the driver's seat of his car from its mount.

Wedge continued on along Route 129, turning left at the East Billerica fire station, where he lost control, went airborne over a snowbank and hit a clump of trees.

At that point, he exited his car and fled on foot. Peterson chased him through backyards, tackling him after about a quarter mile.

Peterson charged Wedge with speeding, attaching plates, operating an unregistered, uninsured motor vehicle, no inspection sticker, operating under the influence of alcohol, refusal to stop for a police officer, illegal possession of a firearm, operating as to endanger, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (motor vehicle), operating after revocation of his license, possession of a dangerous weapon, leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, possession of a class D restricted substance (marijuana), and possession of a class D substance with intent to distribute.

On searching Wedge's car, police allegedly found a starter's pistol with the barrel bored out, as well as four bags of marijuana.

Wedge was held at the Wilmington police station over the weekend in lieu of $5000 cash bail. He was arraigned in Woburn District Court on Tuesday morning, where bail was set at $2000 cash or $20,000 surety.

The car, a 1968 Dodge, was extensively damaged in the chase. It was towed to the Wilmington police station.

Wedge had recently moved to Hopkins Street, Wilmington from Billerica.

Another candidate for Reading Light board

Frank Gorgone of Franklin Street, Reading has filed nomination papers for the coming election in that town for the three year term as a Light Commissioner.

The Light Commissioners, as a result of having adopted a town manager plan in Reading, have been increased to five in number. Formerly, and for many years, the RMLD had three commissioners.

As was reported two weeks ago in this paper, there are candidates for election to four out of five seats, but there was no opposition to the seat occupied by Chairman John Crocker. Wilmington and Chamber of Commerce officials have singled out that gentleman as being non-cooperative, when it comes to discussions between the two towns.

Gorgone, in a letter to the editor of the Reading paper last week, said that his candidacy will provide "a clear choice...a continuation of confrontation, litigation, and secrecy or a new approach focusing on dialogue, negotiation, and open participation...to the benefit of all RMLD customers as well as the Town of Reading."

School committee accepts directors' goals

Wilmington School Committee last week voted unanimously in favor of goals presented by three of the four directors in the school system.

Athletic Director Jim Gillis, Reading Director Brenda Squire, and Special Education Director Cleo Fredette all outlined enrichment goals in their respective areas.

The directors will be expected to work toward their goals in the year

"The Municipal Light Department is a monopoly and has been run exactly so for many years by the same majority of board members, chapter and verse of the laws by which it is empowered, not willing to bend in a hurricane."

"More importantly, it is by and for the people of Reading, not the private domain of a three member committee, and as such the taxpayers' best interests morally as well as fiscally must be considered in major decision making..."

"...I will also work to improve relations with the neighboring towns we service by proposing an associate non-voting membership on the board for each town in order to promote a working relationship with those towns...as partners rather than adversaries."

Mr. Gorgone goes on to say he is a senior vice president of a 100 percent employee owned corporation, with 24 years of financial management. Working in an employee owned environment, he says, can be likened to Town Government... he asks that the Chronicle endorse a new, open approach as opposed to the "present autocratic style."

Shawsheen Tech delegation lobbies for state aid

by Arlene Surprenant
Superintendent/Director Charles Lyons and school committeeman Kevin Sowyrda were part of a delegation from Shawsheen Tech which lobbied and gave testimony on Beacon Hill in Gardner Auditorium February 13.

As legislative liaison, Sowyrda spoke on the passage of Senate Bill 271 before the Mass State Council on Vocational Education. If passed, the bill would force the state to recommit to its previous 50 percent state aid level and help take the financial burden off the five member towns. Under Chap 74, the state was supposed to meet half the cost of regionalized vocational education, explained Sowyrda. However, he said, in recent years state aid has, instead, declined "steadily."

"We are working desperately to get the state to come back to its commitment," Sowyrda told the Town Crier. If successful, the Shawsheen Tech could expect over one million dollars in state funds, funds which would have to be used to offset local assessments, he said.

Sowyrda went on to explain that Tech representatives don't expect the towns and finance committees to do their part without school officials also working for more state aid. He said he will suggest that his committee prepare a draft letter that the town fincoms can send to their legislators on the Tech's behalf. He feels this action would be "tremendously effective" and help save taxpayers money.

Following the four hours of testimony from various school officials, those present last Friday attended a reception with Governor Dukakis in the State House.

Could a trade-off solve the D.A.V. woes?

by Bill Conlon

The "King Solomon" award for amazing insight should go to the author of a Tewksbury letter to the editor in the Feb. 4 edition of the Town Crier.

The author, who unfortunately requested anonymity, and, because of Town Crier policy received it, deserves credit for offering a brilliant potential solution to the controversy surrounding the Disabled American Veterans clubhouse on Pond Street, Tewksbury.

At present, the D.A.V. has its headquarters located in a residentially-zoned neighborhood, on a five-acre parcel of land given to the group by the voters of Tewksbury some years ago. But the neighbors are unhappy with some of the group's activities, and just the discussion heard on the floor of the recent Special Town Meeting alone was enough to point out that a controversy indeed exists.

On the one hand, the D.A.V. has been a true asset to the town, providing services such as a free bus for Sunday School youngsters and the donation of a flagpole for the town common. Few will argue that the group is good for both its members and Tewksbury.

The neighbors in the area, however, are at odds with the D.A.V. over a proposed expansion of the clubhouse, among other things. The D.A.V. leaders claim the clubhouse expansion is needed to keep pace with a rising membership, and the numbers they present seem to bear them out. Literally hundreds of people now use the D.A.V. clubhouse as a meeting place.

The neighbors, however, complain that the group is operating a tavern in a residentially-zoned area. The D.A.V. does not deny selling alcohol at the clubhouse, but states that the sale is to members only. (The D.A.V. hall, it should be noted, is rented out by numerous private and public groups for their functions.) Other complaints from neighbors include the noise, traffic and even the spotlights on the D.A.V. property.

An article was placed before the voters at the last Special Town Meeting which sought to place the D.A.V. land under a new zoning district, called "Municipal-Civic." The effort was defeated by only four votes, which points up the razor-sharp division caused by the issue. Both sides in the controversy have good points to support their arguments, and neither side seems willing to budge. All is quiet at the moment, but the issue is far from settled.

Which brings us back to the letter to the editor.

The author of the letter made the following suggestion, and a good one it is: If the D.A.V. were to split their property into five one-acre building lots and sell them as individual house lots, the money raised would probably be enough to buy a commercially-zoned property in a more central location. The author suggested that about $150,000 could be raised in the venture, but a quick call to the Century 21 real estate office on Main Street reveals that a one-acre lot in that neck of the woods is worth about $45,000. If true, that would place the total for the sale at nearly $225,000. A lot can be done with that kind of money.

With no other solution on the horizon, the suggestion made by our letter-writer seems superbly workable. The D.A.V.'s neighbors would be pleased to have the group relocate, the D.A.V. would be better able to serve their members and provide community services from a more travelled location, and the whole matter could be quickly and quietly settled.

Should a question arise over the land grant to the D.A.V. organization, surely some compromise could be struck in the interest of town unity.

Now, if our letter-writer would only step forward and admit to making such a timely and wise suggestion...

The wisdom of Solomon deserves to be recognized.

Cable task force lashes out at five percent "access charge"

The chairman of the Wilmington Cable TV Task Force has written to the manager of the Greater Boston Cable Corp. (GBCC), taking a strong position against a five percent "access charge" announced in a notice sent out by the cable company with its February bills.

GBCC signed an agreement with the town, renewing the firm's franchise to operate a cable television system in town, and calling for the firm to turn over a five percent charge to the town, to come from the firm's annual revenues. This money would be available for the general fund of the town, but would be intended to fund the operation of a town-owned cable access corporation. This corporation would operate cable channels to broadcast governmental and educational programs, as well as to allow citizens to air programs of their own creation.

Since the announcement by GBCC of the "access charge," complaints have been coming both to the cable company and to the town hall.

Task force Chairman Anthony Carnabuci wrote to GBCC, complaining about the manner in which the "access charge" was assessed. Carnabuci wrote that the contract calls for the funding to come from the licensee's gross annual revenues.

He charged that the cable company told complaining callers that "if Greater Boston Cable Corporation did not agree to support access, they would not have received a contract in the town of Wilmington."

According to Carnabuci, the town was unable to drop the cable firm, due to recent Federal legislation. If the town attempted to switch its cable franchise to another firm, it would have resulted in a lengthy interruption of service. Carnabuci's letter asks that GBCC have a local office open by March 2. The contract had called for it to be open by Jan. 1, but that had been waived to an April 1 opening.

Carnabuci told the cable company that the task force would "not roll over and play dead for this corporate giant."

Wilmington received its first payment from GBCC on Tuesday, a check for $100,000.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowryda

One of these days, people like Phil Donahue and the rest of those Volvo-driving liberals are going to figure out that the average American has enough sense to distinguish fiction from reality. That is to say, no one is going to pay a whole lot of attention to the ABC Television series "Amerika" because it is just another piece of bologna on the boob tube, boasting the worst actors and actresses Hollywood has to offer.

All the commotion centering around this new television production is reminiscent of the last mega television event that ABC sponsored, called "The Day After." This production vividly depicted the immediate aftermath of a nuclear attack on the U.S. We were all warned in the days preceding its airing 'not to view it alone', and to 'have a nice chat with our therapist afterward'. Well, as expected, the day after "The Day After" was just another work day, with no shell shock to worry about.

However, that television event was unfortunately marked by rampant protests from the political right in this country, who maintained that the network had attempted to cripple the nation's will to restore its defenses against a growing Soviet threat through the airing of that movie. The conservatives were greatly overreacting. And unfortunately, the political left is now just as guilty of completely blowing something out of proportion. Their protests in regard to the movie "Amerika" have come quite close to being better entertainment than the picture itself.

Liberals have condemned ABC for promoting, through this 14 1/2 hour television series, a negative impression of the Soviet Union, which is depicted in the television drama as having successfully taken over the United States and establishing a puppet government; which could be a sort of comparison to an element of reality known as Afghanistan. People like Phil Donahue reacted with a lot of indignation on his talk show Monday afternoon, suggesting that there was nothing to fear from the Soviets to begin with.

So, many people aligned with the left have protested the showing of "Amerika" through columns, newspapers, and the mass media. But they have all failed to realize that any debate the television series creates is good for the country. It is healthy for any democracy to openly question and defend its basic beliefs. And in the end, the series is not about to have any effect on policies of national defense or our relations with the U.S.S.R.

And what makes matters worse is that the movie is a real bomb. We're talking a genuine 'B' production here. Its premier Sunday night was about as breathtaking as watching Mike Dukakis make up his mind. The movie stars that dumb-looking guy from "Spencer for Hire," along with Kris Kristofferson, who looks like he is being overpaid for the entire affair.

And what's more is that although the premise of the movie is somewhat absurd, a capitulation of the U.S. to the Soviets, it's kind of hard to swallow some of the debris that has been coming from the liberals over this series. The idea that the Soviet system is a peace-loving one ready to work with the world might be something to put to a vote in Eastern Europe, Afghanistan, or to the relatives of the passengers of Korean Airlines Flight 007.

The Humble Farmer I love Garfield

Last Saturday I attended a seminar in New York City. The topic was "How To Become Syndicated."

Because cities with more than 10,000 people scare me, I almost stayed home. And, being realistic, I know that my offerings aren't good enough to be syndicated. But then, in my opinion, Garfield and Andy Rooney aren't either. There is often profit, however, in rubbing elbows with the good and great, so I went, although my reasons for attending were perhaps different from many of the people there.

Not the least of the reasons being that someone else paid my way.

No matter what they say about New York City, I discovered it to be a unique and interesting place. While riding in on the bus from the Newark airport, I noticed that one could walk on the discarded bottles by the roadside.

"No," the man sitting next to me explained, "we don't have a bottle law in New Jersey. Two or three glass factories would have to close down if bottles were returned and used again. It would put several hundred people out of work."

As I walked out of Port Authority, where the bus ride ended, I passed several dozen movie theaters on 42nd Street boasting John Holmes films that aren't likely to be seen here in this decade.

Nor for years have I felt so humbled by the cultural offerings of a great city.

The seminar was held in a large dining room at the Hyatt where 300 people sat eight to a table. Much to my surprise, some of them were interested in making more money. The exceptions were editorial cartoonists who labor just out of the hatred in their hearts.

We learned there is a market for a California comic strip involving hot tubs and wife swapping, whatever that is. Soap opera reviews would sell as would a travel column by anyone able to submit copy from the middle East of Chile.

The conversation at the tables between sessions was typical of any meeting of newspaper people. "But you've got to know what you're writing about," exclaimed a woman on my left. "This is why men shouldn't write about women." She writes a column that lists available videos, "but it doesn't satisfy my creative muse. All I do is make lots of money."

Everyone at the table tried to look bored.

A tired, middle-age man admitted that he wrote a column giving advice to divorced people. The most asked questions are how to get your kid away from the one who was awarded custody and should you sleep with your ex. On the side he sells a list of syrup festivals held in Vermont.

About this time I noticed that the mirrors on the ceiling enabled me to look down on the panel of experts who sat fidgeting and doodling at the head table. Then I saw that they could also see me so I stopped scratching my head and pulled my chair closer to the table.

The woman across from me wrote a philosophical column for single people which she said always ends on the upbeat. Someone suggested if she's that good she should consider a column that gives answers to things that don't have answers.

Also at my table was a cousin to the much publicized girl in California who was banned from being a cheerleader because her breasts were too large.

"Thank goodness that could never happen at home," I mumbled.

"Those women talk show hosts we have on local stations in California," he confided to us later. "They always expect me to make love to them for having me on their shows. I don't and I never get asked back."

Debbi, from New York, leaned over and whispered to me, "Even if he did he wouldn't get asked back."

Before we went home, she also explained Garfield to me. I'd looked at Garfield off and on for years but couldn't understand it. I once read the strip every day for a year and still didn't see anything there. Like a story in the New Yorker, Garfield had no beginning, no end and nothing in the middle. It wasn't funny and it wasn't sad. There was never anything, substantial or ethereal, that could be considered a social commentary. Garfield was, like the Emperor's New Clothes: nothing.

"Garfield," she quietly explained, "is aimed at the middle class. Why not pretend to understand it and move up a notch?"

Andover Street condos reviewed by planning board

by Arlene Surprenant
A condominium proposal off Andover Street, which will be brought before voters in April, was reviewed by the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday night.

Houssam Sleiman, project manager, presented the semi-final plans his firm prepared for Danco Development Co. of Saugus. Plans call for the 124 units to be laid out in three clusters—one with eleven buildings, one with six buildings, and the last with four buildings. Each building of attached units would present a uniform facade to give a "rural feeling" and reportedly take away from the feeling of having too many units.

Sleiman said the condos would be serviced by sewer. He explained there would be one wetland crossing on the approximately 46 acre plot and 6.8 acres would be reserved for common open space. The "homey feeling of community," added Sleiman, would be aided by careful landscaping, tree buffer zone, and jogging, hiking, and bike trails throughout the development.

Each unit, planners were told, will feature living rooms with cathedral ceilings, a den, dining room, Italian-type balcony, and parking for two cars. There will be additional parking for guests. The main road will run along a New England Power Co. easement with cross roads running to the various units.

According to Attorney Joseph Courtney, the developer plans to set aside ten percent of the units for use as affordable housing. Meetings are expected to be set up with the Conservation Commission, the Building Inspector, Board of Health, and neighbors to explain the plan and answer any questions they may have.

As many persons know, the publisher of this paper was captain of American ships during World War II. From his experiences, and from subsequent reading, there is not much of the seafaring history of World War II of which he does not know, at least a little.

But he had a brand new experience last week. He had lunch with a Norwegian shipmaster who piloted German ships in the fiords of Norway, during World War II. His orders came from the U.S. Government.

Capt. Steve Berge, now 70 years old, is a resident of Nashua, N.H. He was a luncheon guest at the Tewksbury Rotary Club of John McLellan, a former Tewksbury resident.

As a young man he had put many years at sea, under the Norwegian flag.

The writer has a similar history, but he served under the American flag.

At the beginning of World War II many young men, in similar circumstances suddenly became shipmasters, be it Norwegian, British, or other flag, including that of the United States. Steve Berge became Captain Berge of the Norwegian merchant marine.

He sailed to many countries during that war, as did other shipmasters. But his "deepsea" sailing suddenly stopped in 1944.

The U.S. government took him and put him into the Office of Strategic Services (O.S.S.). The O.S.S. was a supersecret organization, which conducted "underground" wars against the Germans, in many countries. Some of the exploits of that organization have become the basis of later American movies--exploits that took place in France and Germany, to name two places.

Berge was sent to Sweden, by the O.S.S. From Sweden he smuggled himself across the mountains into Norway, and then became a coastwise pilot. A coastwise pilot, in Norway, is a man who can take ships from one place to another, in that country, through the fiords of Norway.

Being a native born Norseman is a tremendous asset in such circumstances. In fact, to try to be a pilot in those fiords without having been native born is not easy.

Berge became a pilot of many German ships, including the German destroyers which were "protecting" the country against the British. He was not the only person with such a job, although there were not many.

Somehow, Berge doesn't say how, the British knew which German ships were being piloted by the Norwegian pilots. But it wasn't fun, Berge says, living on ships with the Nazis "heiling" Hitler all the time.

Berge told of one German convoy in which he took part. There were two Norwegian pilots for seven German ships.

The British knew where Berge and the other pilot were. They sank five ships, but not those of Berge and the other Norwegian.

The German Gestapo finally caught up with Berge--not from what he did, but because while in the capital city of Oslo he called up a friend on the telephone. The Gestapo had that telephone line under surveillance, and they caught him.

What the Gestapo did to him Berge did not say. But, his feet are very much crippled. Many bones were broken, by the Gestapo.

The Gestapo killed many of its prisoners. That, at least, did happen to Berge.

NORTHEAST WART CLINIC

Laser Surgery for Warts

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of the intense heat generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The Laser produces a man-made light that has only one color and does not produce any undesirable radiation. The Laser we use is a Carbon-Dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical Lasers.

In our office we now use this laser technology in the removal of warts and other lesions of the hands, feet, genitals and other body areas. Warts to be removed are identified, anesthetized with local anesthesia and "lased" with short bursts of laser light. Not only does the laser remove the wart tissue, but it also stops the bleeding and prevents the swelling that usually results in post-operative discomfort. The procedure is very effective; with minimal discomfort and limitations.

Construction starts soon on new salt shed

State Representative James R. Miceli announced that construction will begin soon on a second chemical storage shed for the town of Wilmington.

Town to get $45,167 for snow and ice

With more than a month left before the official end of winter, Wilmington has received a shot in the arm to help with its snow removal budget.

With the state distributing money from the lottery to aid cities and towns in snow and ice removal, Wilmington will receive $45,167, according to the office of State Rep. Jim Miceli.

Wilmington is better off than many communities, but is not exactly rolling in dough either. The budget for the year included some $277,000 for snow and ice removal. There is still money in the salaries account, but the account for contractual services has been depleted.

Representative Miceli said, "The state Department of Public Works has informed me that a contract has already been awarded for this job. This means that construction should begin within two to four weeks."

The chemical storage shed will be located off Federal Street in Wilmington. Miceli continued, "I wish to thank Massachusetts Department of Public Works Commissioner Robert Tierney for his cooperation in securing this contract for the town of Wilmington. It was a pleasure working with Commissioner Tierney over the past few months. I am very pleased to see our efforts result in the construction of this storage shed."

Representative Miceli said the shed would be used primarily for the storage of road salts. He said the almost 85,000 dollar project is expected to be completed by the end of August.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending February 17, Wilmington police officers responded to five accidents, 30 alarms, five domestic problems, six disturbances, made 10 arrests and four protective custody detentions.

Other departments were assisted four times, medical assistance was given, a larceny was investigated and eight incidents of suspicious activity were reported. One break and entry was investigated along with six incidents of vandalism.

Arrests

Just after midnight Wednesday Officers Jon Shepard and Jim Hanlon arrested Edward Hazard of Parker Street on the basis on a warrant charging assault and battery. He was held overnight to appear in Woburn Court Wednesday morning.

Thursday evening Officer Charley Fiore arrested David Laverde of Jon Street, Billerica when after a traffic stop a computer check revealed Laverde's license was suspended. He was bailed for a Friday court appearance.

Sgt. Duffy and Officer Steve LaRivee arrested two men on drug charges at 7:30 a.m. Friday. Joseph Fenner, 28 of Pine Street, Tewksbury and Glen Carter, 27 of Middlesex Street, Lowell were both charged with possession of a class D substance (marijuana) they were both taken directly to Woburn Court for arraignment. Their cases were continued for two weeks.

Six people were arrested during the midnight shift Friday at 2 a.m. Officer Bob Richter arrested Theodore Diamond of Lafayette Street, Salem after a routine traffic stop. A record check revealed four outstanding warrants issued by three police agencies. Reading held one, State Police in Peabody held two and Marblehead held a fourth. All warrants were issued due to Diamond's failure to pay traffic fines.

Treacherous winter

This has been a very treacherous winter for the older person. We have received more calls than we like on our seniors receiving many broken bones from falls on ice, taking heart attacks from shoveling snow, hypothermia and pneumonia from improper dress when going outside in some of the frigid temperatures we have experienced this year. Despite our awareness of the dangers of snow, ice and cold, we always feel accidents happen to others but not to us. Not true! Accidents are the eighth leading cause of death to the elderly.

It takes only one small slip to cause a broken hip. Many times the beginning of a down-hill slide in our overall health. To avoid unnecessary accidents the first rule to follow in bad weather is not to go out unless absolutely necessary. If you have to go out wear appropriate clothes, including boots with grip soles for walking. And if you are a little unsure of your footing make sure you do not go out alone. Common sense is in order for any of us to survive the type of winter we are experiencing this year without an accident.

Painting class

We will be resuming another 10 week art and painting class for beginners and advanced students. If you always wanted to learn sketching or painting but could not afford $135.00 for a 10 week

Not only will you learn to sketch or paint in these classes, you will be learning an excellent way of relax-therapy.

Woburn Street School

The Woburn Street School is pleased to announce it has seven entries in an art show sponsored by the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Our best wishes go to contestants Mathew Stone (5th grade), Jennifer Benton (4th grade), Karen Buckley (6th grade), Stacy LaBella (6th grade), Andrew Armata (4th grade), Holly Gill (4th grade), and Kenneth Hart (4th grade).

Fifth grader Alyssa Falzone has worked long and hard on a safety poster for the American Automobile Association's 43rd Safety Poster Program. She is the only child entered in the contest from the school.

Shawsheen Elementary

The first edition of "The Shawsheen Bridge," a newsletter to keep parents informed of happenings at the school, is hot off the presses. The idea for a school newspaper aimed at parents was conceived by Principal Robert Coffill. Staff includes Andrea Paglia (Editor), Fran Przjemski, Alice Shaffer, and Margaret Wilson.

The first edition was dedicated to the memory of "gentle family man" Mitchell Spirits. Included were a principal's report, an invitation to keep the lines of communication open, articles on kindergarten and first grade teachers, and information on the school PAC and media center.

Reportedly, over 75 parents attended the first in a four part series on "Why Do Kids Do the Things They Do" by Jack Agati. The series is sponsored by Encouraging Concepts Associates, human resource managers.

The next session will offer specific techniques to help identify and understand the goals of a child's misbehavior. It will be held at the school Monday, March 23.

The program was highly recommended by Principal Robert Coffill.

Committed members of the school PAC recently voted to expend some of the growing funds in their treasury. They elected to fund sets of "New True" books for the library; two activities or games per class for indoor recess; and end of the year banquet and souvenirs for the two upper grades; an extended six week school program for grades four through six; three special activities per grade for grades K-3; and t-shirts for all students to bolster school spirit.

Through its hard work and successful fund raisers, the Shawsheen PAC is also able to sponsor educational speakers and help defray the cost of school trips.

The school PAC will sponsor an ice cream smorgasbord on May 8 for all students, teachers, and parents. Make sure to circle that date on your calendars.

Members are also in the process of forming a committee to research new and safer playground equipment for the school. They hope, too, to visit other schools which have looked into this in the hopes of bringing some equipment to Shawsheen.

If anyone is interested in joining the committee or can offer helpful information, please call Sandy (657-7069).

North Intermediate

Notice scrap collectors: If anyone has scraps of material they are not using, please consider donating them to Mrs. Kanchuga at the North. She will be putting the material to good use for student projects. Many thanks.

Shawsheen Tech

Student skiers at the Tech have been afforded several opportunities to practice their ski techniques through scheduled trips.

On Feb. 17, 23 students journeyed to Pat's Peak to take advantage of this winter's good snow conditions. The $26 trip included all day lift tickets and bus fare.

On March 20-22, 40 students will travel to the Sunday River luxury resort in Maine. The resort features luxury condos with fireplaces, jacuzzis, saunas, and indoor and outdoor pools. For the $167 price tag, students will also be given two day lift tickets and will participate in the WBLM "Rites of Spring" weekend.

Police plan go into schools with campaign against drugs

by Arlene Surprenant

The fight against drugs will be brought into the Wilmington School System next September with the help of local police.

According to Juvenile Officer Robert Spencer, the Drug Awareness Reduction Education (DARE) program is expected to be used in conjunction with Project Charlie to provide fifth and sixth graders with techniques to say no to chemical abuse. The program also focuses on ways to handle peer pressure, drug use and misuse, and building self-esteem.

While Project Charlie is a curriculum aimed at all elementary schoolers and is taught by teachers, the DARE program is a 16 lesson curriculum geared to two upper grades and taught by uniformed officers.

"The perception is teachers usually teach from a book. This officer, instead, will talk from life experience," says Police Chief Bobby Stewart, referring to Spencer, who will receive two weeks training before going into the classroom.

"He can help them a tremendous amount because of his experience," continues Chief Stewart, adding that Spencer comes from the street and "this is where the problems are."

The idea for DARE originated in 1983 with the Los Angeles Chief of Police. After it was instituted in the L.A. system, follow up studies showed an increase in respect for authority figures and an increased awareness of the dangers of chemical abuse. The success of the program spread rapidly, leading to a similar program called SPECDA in New York. After making several attempts at getting into the popular program, Spencer finally succeeded.

Robert Spencer is a good choice to bring the program into the Wilmington schools. He is familiar with the school system and a familiar face to students, teachers, and parents alike. He also spends much of his time in court with troubled teens and their parents. He maintains that most youthful offenders neither understand the courtroom jargon nor are deterred by the court system, something which leads to repeat offenders.

So what does work, in his estimation?

Any program where kids talk to kids, says Spencer. He singles out Wilmington High's Peer Leadership Program as an example. In this program, high school students volunteer to undergo training so they can go into the lower grades and lead discussions on peer pressure and turning down drugs.

Another program which receives rave notices is the Dept. of Youth Services' Kids Care Program. In this program, former drug abuser Richard Mahoney takes "court committed kids" and brings them to schools to talk to large student audiences on the dangers of chemical abuse. The kids, who are definitely not polished speakers nor dressed any differently from their audience counterparts, speak both from personal experience and the heart.

"You could hear a pin drop when they begin to talk," Spencer says, adding, "That approach does work, believe me."

Spencer is happy with the results of the Wilmington Police Department's Juvenile Diversion Program. In this program, first time offenders are kept out of the court system if they agree to go for counseling and their parents work closely with local police. Spencer says he's only seen one repeat offender out of 40 or so teenagers.

Perhaps the best answer, beyond education, counseling, and kids talking to kids, is to go right to the parents. Though Spencer recognizes parents today have "too little time" to do all that's expected of them, he stresses the importance of the right training at home.

"They (parents) need to teach kids an early respect for the property of others, among other things," he explains. Spencer points out when there's a problem, a small percentage of parents either deny it or look beyond the faults of their own child and blame others.

Spencer wishes parents would support efforts made by the school system and the police department.

He claims the emphasis on organizing everything from sports to recreational activities doesn't allow much time for free spirited activities such as sandlot games and spur-of-the-moment ice skating on public ponds, which are rarely cleared of mounds of snow.

"Everything seems to be too organized; there's too much restriction," he says, adding that youngsters today don't know how to take the initiative and feel most comfortable, perhaps, hanging around the school parking lot.

Both Chief Stewart and Spencer say since 1983, they've made inroads in fighting chemical abuse in Wilmington.

"The situation is drastically improved, I think, but by no means have we eliminated the problem. It's a constant process," explains Chief Stewart.

Spencer points out that the majority of teenagers between the ages of 12 and 20 are going to have an opportunity to do drugs. Many youngsters try it to see what it's like. A small minority continue on drugs until they're so deeply entrenched they can't escape. However, Spencer adds, the problem is not as "flagrant" as it used to be, thanks to awareness efforts on the part of local organizations and the media.

Thanks, too, to Robert Spencer, a man who cares, and cooperation between the Wilmington Police Department and Wilmington Public Schools.

Spencer's views on . . .

Juvenile Officer Robert Spencer usually keeps a low profile. In a recent interview, he made some outspoken comments about teenagers, parents, drug abuse, and the Wilmington School System which we feel are worth sharing with our readers.

On bringing up children: "It's the way you teach your kids at a young age and the way you bring them up. They're going to pick up ideas on street corners if they're not taught at home. It's one of those situations where parents either pay now or pay later."

On Project Charlie: "This program prepares kids for when they come into contact with drug abuse. We want to give them the tools to fight it off. We want to lay the groundwork early and, hopefully, it will work."

On DARE: "Just the fact someone's in there talking about it... it has to make a difference."

On the school system: "I think the school system is overwhelmed at times because of the enormous amount of problems. The majority of time, for guidance counselors, is spent as social workers. I wonder if that's the way it's meant to be."

On teachers handling problem students: "There's no set rules or guidelines on how to deal with people out of control. I have to give them high marks down there (WHS). They really restrain themselves."

Why kids do drugs: "I don't think they do it because they like it. I don't think anybody wants to feel pain and suffering. Actually, there's no one set answer because each case is different."

Reason for poor attendance at some drug information programs: "If you have a disease and it's visible, do you want to go out in the open with it?"

Vassallo remains hopeful for reinstatement

by Arlene Surprenant

Officer Robert Vassallo of the Wilmington Police Department remains hopeful that he will be reinstated to his former position of sergeant, following a recent hearing before the Civil Service Commission.

Vassallo was demoted to patrolman last July by Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, who found him guilty of using excessive force to restrain Patrick McNally. McNally was in protective custody at the time. Stapczynski also found him guilty of lesser charges including withholding evidence and falsifying a report.

"The testimony that came forth at the hearing would lead me to believe the decision will be reversed," said an optimistic Vassallo last week. He referred specifically to testimony by Officer Lawrence Redding, who told hearing officer Christopher Connelly that Vassallo, knew McNally. A knee, Vassallo claims, is "a recognized method of self-defense" and not excessive force. According to Vassallo, Redding also testified that Sgt. James Palmer was not in the cell area during the incident. Palmer had previously sworn that Vassallo drop-kicked McNally.

"Redding and Steve (Mauriello) completely agree with me. I feel if that's taken into consideration, the ruling should come down in my favor," added Vassallo.

Both sides now have until February 20 to file briefs or a synopsis on the oral testimony. The hearing officer will then weigh the contents before making a recommendation to the Civil Service Commission.

Though Police Chief Bobby Stewart had estimated the decision would come within 30 days, Vassallo said he felt it would probably be closer to 60 days.

$70K computer equipment grant to Fitchburg State College

Fitchburg State College has been awarded a $70,000 equipment grant from Compugraphic Corp., of Wilmington, to upgrade the computerized typesetting capabilities in the college's Industrial Technology Department.

Included in the grant are five computer terminals, a 10-megabyte hard disc and a preview screen. The new equipment will complement the college's modular composition system (MCS), used by industrial arts students to set extremely high quality type for printing and graphic arts uses.

Compugraphic is the world's largest manufacturer of typesetting equipment. Its home office is in Wilmington.

"We're excited about this latest expansion of our system," said Industrial Technology Professor Edson H. Phelps. "The graphic arts segment of our industrial technology department has long been providing well-trained technical people for the printing industry. To continue to do that we must be able to keep up with technological advances in the field. This generous gift from Compugraphic will help us do that, because their products are state-of-the-art."

One of the five terminals is of the what-you-see-is-what-you-get (WYSIWYG) variety. A recent advance in computer technology, WYSIWYG display screens provide users with an exact representation of what will be printed. The other four terminals send information to the preview, which then presents it in the WYSIWYG format.

The department's total typesetting system consists of eight keyboards controlled by a 896K central processing unit. It features on-line proofing to a Compugraphic Diablo line printer, and ultimately, final output on a Compugraphic 8600 CRT typesetter. In addition, the system is connected to the college's CDC Cyber computer and the statewide Board of Regents computer system, allowing the department to receive and send data through telecommunications.

Also available to industrial arts students is a separate Compugraphic MCS-5 system used for computer-aided estimating in classes devoted to that topic.

The computerized typesetting systems, Phelps noted, are also tied to the college's Graphic Center of Excellence. A combined effort of the departments of computer science, industrial technology and communications/media, the center seeks to develop programs and integrate equipment within the fields of computer graphics, graphic arts and graphic design.

Solar salt to be used by Diamond Crystal

Diamond Crystal Salt Company has announced it has purchased all of the capital stock of Sol-Aire Salt and Chemical Company from AMAX Inc. The acquisition is the first step in a $12,000,000 project to build a major solar salt facility on Sol-Aire properties at the Great Salt Lake, Utah, said Roy C. Satchell, president and ceo of Diamond Crystal.

The purchase price includes about $800,000 in cash, equivalent to the net book value of Sol-Aire at closing, plus future royalties to be paid based on salt shipments.

The Diamond Crystal project will include recovery of a portion of the brine concentrating ponds which were lost when an AMAX dike failed during a June 1986 storm. Diamond Crystal also plans to build new salt crystallizing ponds and a processing plant on adjacent Sol-Aire property near Timpie, Utah. According to Satchell, the operation will employ about 100 people. Construction is expected to begin in the near future.

The project will provide

Diamond Crystal with a domestic source of solar salt for part of its predominantly eastern U.S. market while allowing the company to expand to the west, Satchell indicated.

"Solar salt is increasingly preferred over road salt for certain applications such as water conditioning. The project will allow us to better serve the changing needs of our customers," Satchell stated.

Diamond Crystal has not produced solar salt since it shut down its solar facility in the Bahamas in 1981 as a result of changing weather patterns.

Diamond Crystal has its corporate offices in St. Clair, MI. The Salt Division, which produces and distributes various salt products, has its headquarters and a plant in St. Clair, MI. The Packet Products Division, which manufactures individual food condiment packets, low sodium dietary products and meal service kits, has its headquarters and a plant in Wilmington, Mass.

Surge to top

Wildcats are tourney bound

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School basketball program has come full circle once again, qualifying for its second Eastern Massachusetts Tournament in the last 20 years with a team of tough role players and the best big man in the conference.

Coach Dave Orndorff's squad recently clinched a tourney berth and are making a run at the Small School Division title of the MVC with an overall record of 11-7.

Monday the Wildcats put another feather in their cap with a 56-49 non-league victory over a 15-4 Greater Lowell squad.

This latest win featured a balanced attack led by Jim Pelletier and George Fuller with 10 points apiece. Rob DeSantis, center Mike Lombard and Dan Woods rounded out the offense with eight points each.

Lombard, enjoying an MVP type season, grabbed 12 rebounds, blocked three shots and had three assists in the victory.

Thursday night the Wildcats will attempt to clinch the Small School title outright when they play a Tewksbury team that still is shooting for a piece of that crown along with their first tourney berth since 1975.

Wildcats 60 Methuen 53... Methuen came out on fire, shooting 70 percent in the first half to take a 26-24 halftime advantage. The Rangers held Lombard to six points during the first half, as senior Jim Moynihan picked up the scoring slack with eight points.

The Wildcats came out for the second half knowing that with a victory they could clinch at least a tie for the division title as well as qualify for the tournament.

"Our third quarter was the best quarter I have seen a team play in many years," noted Orndorff afterwards.

Wilmington outscored the Rangers 23-2, as Lombard broke out with 10 points and two slam dunks that inspired the play of teammates DeSantis (four points), Moynihan (four) and Eddy (three).

The Cats took a 47-28 third quarter lead, as everyone played and got to be a big part of Wilmington basketball history.

Lombard finished with 23 points and 12 rebounds, while Moynihan was next with 13 points and seven assists. DeSantis helped the cause with eight points.

Wildcats 49 Billerica 41... Lombard again was the main man with 22 points, 10 rebounds and five steals. Moynihan played his best game of the season with 11 points, five steals and seven assists. Joe McMenimen played a great defensive game while hauling down six rebounds.

Wildcats 59 Dracut 40... The Wildcats blew out the Middies in the second half behind the play of Lombard (20 points, 11 rebounds), Fuller (eight points, eight rebounds) and Rob DeSantis (eight). Tony DeSantis was also a factor with four assists.

Tom Moran and Andy Parr each played in their first varsity game and scored two points apiece.

Lawrence 53 Wildcats 51... "We played really hard in this game," noted the WHS coach. "We were down 11 points in the third quarter and came back to cut that lead to seven with one quarter left. We tied it in the fourth quarter at 49-49. Lombard then got the ball and passed to Fuller who had his shot blocked under the basket with 29 seconds left. Lawrence then sank a 10 footer and we came down and missed our shot. We had to foul them before we finally scored at the buzzer."

Lombard was tops with 18 points and 18 rebounds, followed by Fuller (11 points, seven rebounds) and Moynihan (four points, five assists).

"I'm not happy about losing, but I'm very pleased with the play of Moynihan and Mark Eddy at the guard positions," offered Orndorff. "With Eric Braciska out for the season I was worried about us filling the void that was left by his injury."

Wildcats 52 Tewksbury 49... The Wildcats came out on top in this rugged game that saw guard Eric Braciska go down for the season with a knee injury.

Lombard (22) and DeSantis (10) were the keys for the home squad, while the Redmen were led by O'Brien (15), Boudreau (12) and Prince (10).

Wildcats 70 Haverhill 56... "We played a very smart game," praised the WHS coach. "Our shot selection was the best that I have seen it in three years."

Lombard was a force around the basket with 28 points, getting support from Jim Pelletier (10) and Rob DeSantis (eight). Braciska and Moynihan hooped seven points apiece for the winners.

not out

Wilmington High School goaltender John McNally is down but not out in this conference game against the Methuen Rangers last week.

This recent surge sets up Thursday night's (7:45) showdown at Tewksbury. "This game should be a real war," predicted Orndorff. "Tewksbury could share the Small School title with us and Lawrence if they win. They could also qualify for the tournament. It's just going to be a great night of basketball."

"I'm calling it Thanksgiving in February."

by Bill Conlon
Some ice fishing trips are easier to take than others.

A warm, windless day on the lake, with cooperative fish and plenty of hot coffee, is like a walk in the park. If the sun shines, why not bring out the kids, the barbeque and the lawn chairs and make a day of it?

But when the wind howls and the mercury dips to five below zero, you just know it's going to be a rough day at the old fish factory.

And it was. The wind-chill factor hovered at some ungodly negative number last Saturday, making it hardly a surprise that only 39 hardy anglers turned out for the first-ever Tewksbury Youth Center ice fishing derby, held on Ames Pond.

The tournament itself was one of the best-run and best-organized in the area, thanks to the efforts of veteran local ice fisherman Gordon Lutz. After 20 years of ice fishing tournaments, Gordy said, he ran the derby the way he felt one should be run.

But the conditions were simply awful. Beads of ice were dangling from every mustache and beard among the contestants -- it was THAT cold.

The original plan for the derby was to give half the entry money back in prizes, with the other half going to benefit the Youth Center. But the low turnout prompted Gordy to give back ALL of the entry money, after taking out just enough to cover the costs of putting on the derby.

First place for bass, and $100 in coin of the realm, went to Mike Doherty of Tewksbury for a 3-pound-3.5 ounce specimen; second and $50 went to Jamie Holden of Tewksbury for a 2-pound-10.5 ounce; and third and $25 went to Bill Blaisdell of Wilmington for a 2-pound-6 fish.

The pickerel category saw Eric Kauppila of Lowell haul in a 4-pound-8.5 chainside, which was also big enough to qualify Eric for a state pin, along with first place and $100; second and $50 went to Ron Lepine of Dracut for a 2-pound-9 fish; and Bruce Kauppila of Lowell (Eric's son) took third and $25 for a pickerel weighing just a quarter ounce less than Ron's. All six winners also received trophies.

An unusual twist to the derby was a "Secret Weight" prize. Whoever caught a fish weighing up to, but not over, a pre-selected weight would win a hand auger. "Deacon Bill" Emerson of St. William's Church picked the weight prior to the tournament, according to Lutz. The "Secret Weight" was 2-pounds-11, and the auger went to Jamie Holden. Lucky youngster, that one.

A pile of door prizes was also handed out, with the winning ticket stubs drawn from Gordy's bait bucket, appropriately enough. Bob's Bait and Tackle deserves a tip of the hat for helping with some of the door prizes.

--Tackle Box--

The Shawsheen environmental group S.W.E.A.T. will be holding their 3rd-annual fishing derby this coming Sunday on Ames Pond, Tewksbury. Fishing starts at 7 a.m., and the S.W.E.A.T. members have been hustling to spread the word. Better be there early to reserve your favorite patch of ice.

According to Jack Barry, one of the principals of S.W.E.A.T., the owner of Dave's Bait, near Fort Pond in the Shirley-Lunenburg area, had never heard of ice fishing tournaments. Dave's Bait is now hosting a tournament on Feb. 28 on that pond, which is noted for a healthy trout population.

A Hunter Safety Course is being offered at the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club, on Chandler Street, starting March 5 at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Also from Tewksbury R & G, member George Rost was recently named "Sportsman of the Year." Way to go, George!

This joke may be a bit long in the tooth, but Bob Perry of Tewksbury gets the nod for reminding me --

A youngster was out ice fishing, and hauling in fish left and right, while everyone around him was going fishless. Seeing the youngster's activity, another ice fisherman came strolling up and asked the kid what he was using. The youngster answered, "Mgh hokms ghjnm wmmk."

Raising an eyebrow, the ice fisherman stated that he couldn't hear what was said, and again asked the youngster what his secret was.

The kid then leaned forward and spat a brown lump into his hand.

"I said, you have to keep the worms warm," he replied. Sorry.

The trophy for biggest bass, and $100 in cash, went to Mike Doherty (right) at last Saturday's fishing tournament on Ames Pond in Tewksbury. Shown with Mike and his 3-plus pound winning largemouth is Mike's long-time fishing buddy Tom Brainerd. All three are from Tewksbury.

Bay State Games

Alpine racing Feb. 27, 28

Alpine ski racers across Massachusetts are looking ahead to February 27, 28 and March 1 and a great ski racing experience at the Bay State Winter Games. There, the state's top Scholastic, College and Masters skiers will come together for a weekend of racing in an Olympic Games atmosphere.

All-told, 800 athletes in four winter Olympic sports will be converging on the Northern Berkshires for the Third Bay State Winter Games, presented by Bank of Boston.

Each division of alpine skiers has a different experience at the slalom and giant slalom races. In the Open division, the Games have annually brought out the state's top collegiate skiers.

For the Masters, there's a chance to race with, but be scored separately from the current college hot shots. Yet, it is the scholastics who may get the most from the Games.

Each scholastic skier must qualify for the Games by placing high in their respective league rankings during the season. Bay State Games Alpine chairman John Moody pointed out, "This is the premier event for the high school and the up-and-coming Tri-State (Eastern USA) skiers to point for. It's a quality race at a first-rate facility,

Camp Fire kids
spend a day learning about dental hygiene

Tewksbury Camp Fire kids celebrated Dental Health Month with a visit to a local dentist. First and fifth graders and their co-leaders Diana Buckley, Pat Tackach, and Judy Kierstead were hosted at Dr. Puchkoff's office by dental hygienist Christine Lewis.

Their visit included a complete dental checkup and abundance of information on daily dental care. Each Camp Fire child was allowed to be a dental hygienist as well as a patient as each child learned how to use explorers, mirrors, and suction instruments. Xrays were provided for those who wanted them and the children were shown how xrays are developed and what to look for in the xrays of their teeth.

First graders were warned against "sugar bugs" while fifth graders were taught how to identify and then arm themselves against plaque. Proper brushing methods were demonstrated as well as special care procedures being demonstrated for loose baby teeth or teeth with braces. Fifth graders learned what requirements must be met to become a dental assistant, hygienist, or even a dentist. Each was even afforded an opportunity to be a dentist and actually drilling a real tooth which had been previously extracted and mounted by Dr. Puchkoff.

At the end of the visit, each child left with an assortment of xrays, toothbrushes and other maintenance paraphernalia, drilled mounted teeth and big bright new toothy smiles.

Jessica Buckley, Tabitha Pacini and Cori Lewis recently learned all about dentistry on a Camp Fire trip.

Patti Whelan and Mary Beth Goguen practice dental technique on patient Jennifer Tackach.

Wilmington Police assist

Winner's wild ride

By ARLENE SURPRENANT

Some people will go to any lengths to avoid the wrath of Old Man Winter. Take Wilmington resident Janis Mangino, for instance, who last Thursday managed to escape the last in a series of snow storms thanks to WROR radio personalities Joe and Andy.

Mangino turned out to be the lucky winner in Joe and Andy's last-minute-getaway vacation contest. As a result of being the 30th caller to the early morning show shortly after 7 a.m., Mangino found herself being whisked off to the sunny climes of Orlando, Fla.

"I couldn't believe it. I just kept saying you're kidding, you're kidding. You know, you do crazy things in your life, but this had to be one of the craziest," said the fortunate West Street homeowner on her return Monday morning.

The prize package included round trip plane fare and a free four day stay at the Hyatt Hotel in Orlando — if Mangino could make the 9:15 a.m. flight at Logan Airport.

"I'm organized so it only took me 15 minutes to pack. I just opened the drawer and threw in what I thought I needed," Mangino explained.

Her husband, Paul, a business representative for Carpenter's Local 51 in Boston, has more vivid memories of that unforgettable morning.

"She was ecstatic and almost screaming," he recalled. "I thought something serious had happened, you know, like an emergency," he said, adding "it was a circus here after that."

Because the trip was for two and her husband elected to stay home with their 10-year-old son Paul, Mangino called her sister Marie Perotti of Park Street to join her. Then began the frenzied drive from Marie's job in Boston back to Wilmington to pack before the deadline expired.

Husband Paul, meanwhile, drove to his wife's office in Wakefield to collect some papers and viewed, with dismay, the backup of traffic on Route 93.

"When I saw 93 I thought we'd never make it," he said.

Joe and Andy, however, came to Mangino's rescue with a quick call to the Wilmington police station to arrange for an escort to the airport. Police Chief Bobby Stewart okayed the request and Officer James Cuoco arrived at the Mangino home by 8:10 p.m.

"We had never had this kind of a request before," explained Chief Stewart. "It was one of those things I guess you would consider good public relations and a service to the community. We were glad to do it," he added.

Ironically, their flight was delayed until 10:22 a.m. Once in Florida, though both women spent their time in the 75 degree weather sunbathing and relaxing by the hotel pool. They didn't take in the usual tourist attractions as the whole family had seen it all during an extended stay just three months before.

"Truthfully, it was just an R and R couple of days where we soaked up the sun," said Mangino, who added she was glad to see the last of the white stuff for a couple of days.

Will she continue to listen to her favorite radio station? With two more months of winter ahead, what do you think?

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week:

It has been over a year since the first major salvo against drinking and driving was fired by the state. We have had adequate time to determine whether the crackdown has been working. It is clear that the crackdown is removing drinkers from behind the wheels of their automobiles, and this has been good for all of us. But one reader, Joe Tyler, of Wilmington, stopped by the other day to ask us if we thought the new tough drunk driving law is truly working.

By "truly working" he meant is it keeping the chronic drinkers out of bars and off the roads. From Mr. Tyler's point of view, the law isn't working. He admits that he enjoys stepping out on the town for an occasional glass of wine. A middle-aged bricklayer, he hardly appears to be the type to over-indulge in late-night revelry. Yet he runs the risk of being arrested and facing the same stiff consequences of the tough drunk driving law as the hard-core drinker and driver. And this bothers Mr. Tyler.

What his complaint boils down to is this: too many people like himself are being subjected to the rigid boundaries of the new law, while the law is having little impact on removing the chronic drinkers from the highways. Mr. Tyler was not without suggestions for a solution to this problem.

"Why not create a 'drinking license'?" he queries.

The drinking license which Mr. Tyler suggests would be issued in addition to a driver's license. Every individual wishing to purchase alcoholic beverages in a package store or frequent a bar or restaurant would be required to show this form of identification. There would be no exceptions, regardless of age (the state would also benefit, because it would be able to raise additional revenue by charging a nominal fee for the license, which would have a photograph and be renewed once every, say, five years).

"The first time somebody is caught breaking the drinking and driving law, their drinking license would be revoked," says Mr. Tyler. "Once this privilege has been removed, a person would not be able to buy liquor in a liquor store or a bar. The only way they would be able to drink is if somebody purchased it from them, and they drank it in their homes. This would help to keep these people out of bars and off the roads."

If an individual who has had his drinking license revoked is caught driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, then his driver's license should be revoked, Mr. Tyler believes.

"If a person is caught drinking and driving once their drinking license has been revoked," he says, "then they deserve to have their driver's license taken away."

Spring entrance exams at Austin Prep March 7

Austin Prep's annual spring Entrance Exam will be held on Saturday morning, March 7 at 8:30 a.m. The test will be given at the school, 101 Willow Street, Reading, near Routes 93 and 128. Preregistration for the exam is not required. All applicants must take the exam in person at the school.

This Entrance Exam is for students who wish to apply for openings this September. Applications will be accepted for students who wish to enter the ninth grade, and also from transfer students who wish to enter the 10th or 11th grade. The school accepts students of all faiths.

Austin Preparatory School is a private Catholic secondary school which offers a college preparatory curriculum tailored to individual ability levels. Each year over 90 percent of the graduating class enters college. Last year 88 percent were accepted at their first or second choice.

Austin Prep offers college-level Advanced Placement courses in several departments. Two years ago a new computer laboratory was dedicated. This new facility is an Acorn Micro computer system with 26 terminals which can be used in a network or independently. The terminals offer dual-language capability, all-color monitors, arcade-quality graphics, and word-processors.

The area prep school also offers extensive extracurricular activities and a program of intramural and interscholastic sports.

Merrimack College offers program for adult daughters of alcoholics

Helping the adult daughter of alcoholics recover a "sense of play" will be the focus of a five-week program at Merrimack College.

The program will meet on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. on March 5, 12, 26, April 2 and 9. Designed to help adult daughters of alcoholics learn relaxation and develop a sense of "play," the program is on the "cutting edge" of help for the families of alcoholics.

The sessions will be led by Patricia Gary, M.Ed., herself the daughter of an alcoholic. As Ms. Gary explains, "When you grow up in an alcoholic home, there is no childhood. The child has to grow up real fast. Many times the kid in the family has to assume adult responsibilities."

Ms. Gary, who has a background in teaching and physical education, stresses that the program is not a therapy group but a "play group."

Registration for the program is $50. The group will be limited in size, so interested participants should register as soon as possible. Further information on the program is available from the Merrimack College Office for Special Programs (683-7111, ext. 324).

Treasures of the past at Wenham Museum

"Grandma's Attic," an exhibit of four generations of one family's treasures from an elegant past, opened at the Wenham Museum on Tuesday, February 17. The visitor will be treated to a glimpse into a privileged lifestyle of pre-World War II through what was saved by the Thayer family of "Hillside" in Lancaster, Mass. The Museum gallery has been imaginatively transformed into an unfinished attic, complete with eaves, to showcase the vast variety of family belongings that were unearthed by the Thayer great-grandchildren when Hillside was sold recently.

Family treasures to look at, and to linger over during a visit to this breathtaking array, include Mrs. Thayer's elegant ballgowns; underwear and children's silk dresses from Paris; trunks spilling over with laces, silks, lingerie, and fans; a fabulous christening outfit of satin and lace; hats, shoes, and parasols; a profusion of family photographs, New England prep school and college memorabilia, sports outfits, toys, games, small furniture — and even a porcelain birdcage.

A very special corner of Grandma's Attic has been set aside for children to dress up in vintage clothing and accessories which the Museum's attic has been collecting over the years for just this purpose.

Members and friends of the Museum are invited to an elegant tea on Sunday, March 8, at 3:30 p.m., to view the exhibit and to meet some of the Thayer family. If you wish, come in something from your grandmother's attic. Members of the Museum staff and Exhibit Committee will do informal modeling of period dresses.

A second special event to highlight this exhibit will be a quilt conservation workshop on Wednesday, March 25, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The ladies from Cranberry Quilters in Hamilton will show participants how to preserve and store heirloom quilts. Reservations are necessary. Please call the Museum office (468-2377) to sign up and receive further details.

"Grandma's Attic" will be open to the public through Sunday, April 5; Monday-Friday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday, 1 to 4 p.m.; and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. The admission fee of $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children 6-14 includes, in addition to the exhibit, a tour of the world-famous doll collection and 17th-century Claflin-Richards with period furnishings.

The Wenham Museum is located at 132 Main Street (Route 1A) in Wenham (Exit 20N off Route 128). Group reservations at a reduced rate may be made by calling (617) 468-2377.

Roving

Mr. Tyler feels this procedure would allow most social drinkers, if caught breaking the law for the first time, the chance to keep their driver's license, which, says Mr. Tyler, is absolutely essential to most people's work lives. "If I got stopped by the police with just a couple of glasses of wine in me and I lost my license, it would make things very hard for me," he says, adding, "and I'm sure most social drinkers feel the same way."

If this is true, then perhaps just the fear of being subjected to the penalties of the new drunk driving law is enough proof to conclude that it is working.

MORE FM TALK: Congratulations are in order for Dennis Conner and the crew of Stars & Stripes, which recently brought the America's Cup back to the States, as you know. It was very exciting to watch cable coverage of the final races, in spite of the ugly hour which it appeared. The races brought back many memories to this columnist, who had the pleasure, in 1978, of covering the America's Cup races for a Boston magazine. I won't be making my Academy Awards predictions for a while, but don't be surprised if I pick "Platoon" to run away with most, if not all, of the major Oscars. If someone had told you ten years ago that in 1987 the biggest blockbuster of the year was going to be a film about the Vietnam war, you probably would have laughed him out of the room. But it's 1987, and along comes "Platoon," which, by the way, I highly recommend that you see.

I have a handful of other films I'd like to recommend also, in case you're looking over the film pages to make your plans for the weekend: "The Bedroom Window," "Dead of Winter," "The Stepfather," and "Touch and Go," are sure-fire winners...If reading is your pastime pleasure this weekend, then rush to the nearest bookstore and buy yourself a copy of "Washington," by James Reston, the distinguished New York Times columnist, or, if your taste is for mystery, "Good and Dear," by Jane Langton.

In spite of my recent criticism of snow being played into giant piles along the islands leading to entrance and exit ramps around rotaries, I have to admit that the local and state DPW workers have done an admirable job of snow removal this winter...I thoroughly enjoyed the recent NHL — Soviet all-star matchups from Quebec. They were surely far more exciting than the run-of-the-mill all-star games we've seen lately...While on the subject of hockey, this year's Beanpot final between Boston and Northeastern universities was the best I've seen in years, even if the Huskies did lose in overtime.

"God does not work evil. He gives us Reasons and Learning so that we may ever be on guard against the pitfalls of error and destruction." — Kahlil Gibran.

Make it a good one.

Dead of Winter Black Widow

Dead of Winter starring Mary Steenburgen, Roddy McDowall, Jan Rubes, William Russ. Directed by Arthur Penn. Produced by John Bloomgarden and Marc Shmuger. Written by Shmuger and Mark Malone. Rated R.

There are a lot of problems with Dead of Winter but the gravest of all is that director Arthur Penn's strong, stylish visuals and sense of irony are all but lost in his obvious, rather blundering thriller.

Penn, who once upon a time directed Bonnie and Clyde and Little Big Man left too much of his own style out of this film and spent a great deal of time aping Alfred Hitchcock's. We sense the fakery and the story about blackmail, abduction, greed and deception just doesn't ring true.

However, the opening sequence, which is the best in the film, echoes back to Penn's greater days. We watch a grisly murder and mutilation set against a blue black night that quickly becomes both startling and scary. However, Penn spent so much time setting us up, telling us who isn't the victim, that we were able to deduce her identity almost immediately. And from that moment, we are only going through the motions. There may be a few surprises, but they are manipulative scares, like jumping out from behind a door and yelling "boo." The real chills evade us because we are always one step ahead of the story.

Mary Steenburgen, always a competent actress, does her best to be convincing in three roles, but by the time the third one pops up, things seem a little silly. Twins you can believe, but twins who have an exact double who is not related is a bit hard to buy. Jan Rubes as the evil, crippled doctor is sufficiently creepy, but Roddy McDowall gives us the same prancing, mincing act we've seen before.

Actually, that is the problem with the movie on the whole; we have seen it before. Not that Dead of Winter is terrible, its biggest sin is simply mediocrity. But with icy backdrops, a creaking Victorian setting and all the accoutrements of a good Gothic thriller, this should have been more effective.

Black Widow starring Debra Winger, Theresa Russell, Sami Frey. Directed by Bob Rafelson. Produced by Harold Schneider. Written by Ronald Bass. Rated R. (profanity, nudity).

"She mates, and then she kills." A great tag line. Unfortunately, as is often the case, you remember the motto long after the movie fades from your mind.

Not that Black Widow is a stinker, it isn't. But it is an average movie that had a lot of good material, and director Bob Rafelson let it slip away from him.

This is a film that should have had a hard edge, had a gritty feel to it, like Chinatown. Instead, it is prettily lit, full of picturesque backdrops and Hawaiian beaches. When you add a plot full of obsession, murder and Theresa Russell's crackling sexuality to the pretty scenery, the end result is like oil and water: It just sort of sits there.

Russell plays a woman who marries, and then kills, wealthy men. She studies each victim, his passions, skills and weaknesses, and then molds herself as his complement. She also changes her appearance to suit their tastes. For instance, the flamboyant Texan finds himself with a green-eyed, sassy red head and the Seattle museum owner with a subdued, modest intellectual. She has become the ultimate prostitute who isn't satisfied until she clears the slate with a favorite of women's weapons, poison.

Russell is brilliant as the murderous chameleon. The difference in each of the four women she "becomes" are stupefying. She adds a mysterious depth to her character(s) not only because she is bathed in sensuality, but because she is never overtly insane. There is something slightly off about her, a little strange, but just enough to be interesting, not maniacal. And this subtlety is much more appealing than Debra Winger's straight forward portrayal of a Department of Justice investigator.

Winger also plays an obsessed woman, and she is bound and determined to catch this beautiful widow whose husbands keep dying. And while Winger's performance is competent, it pales next to Russell's and next to the exemplary supporting cast, including the ubiquitous Denis Hopper and Nichol Williamson. You can't help but think that, like director Rafelson, had Winger just taken a chance, played it down and dirty, this thriller would have been a drama able to withstand the test of time. At it is, Black Widow is as ephemeral as a spider's web.

Short Takes

Light of Day emerges as a gritty rock 'n' roll film, only to be taken over by the sub-plots. The movie trips over itself until dullness glosses over even the earthy performance of Joan Jett as a rebellious young woman born to rock. By the time her mother, played by an unconvincing Gena Rowlands, contracts a fatal disease, the movie has taken on a new identity that careens right over the original storyline.

My Sweet Little Village is a delightful comedy that brings to life a sleepy Czech village. The characters are richly textured in this highly visual story about a trick driver and his simple mate. The warm humor and touching sentiment transcends language barriers to happily reaffirm small town life.

There is esthetically gorgeous, with its minimalist sets and eerie, incandescent lighting. But there is no denying that this biopic about St.

These casts a dubious light on her lifestyle. One can't help but walk away thinking that she was a fanatic, and that the Carmelite Order was more perverse than holy. No rating.

Critical Condition could be the death of Richard Pryor at the box office, since he bears the brunt of the painfully boring movie. There isn't a successful sight gag or joke in this ambulatory flick that is sort of about a con man, mental patients and hospital administration. Rated R.

Wanted: Dead or Alive has all the earmarks of a successful action flick as Rutger Hauer is icily convincing as a modern day bounty hunter going after terrorists. Unfortunately, the writers ended up with another Rambo clone and Hauer got lost in the shuffle. Rated R.

Bedroom Window is a true homage to Hitchcock, as this thriller takes an innocent man and forces him to break the law to prove he's not a murderer. Steve Guttenberg will have you on the edge of your seats as he stalks the rapist/murderer who set him up. We know whodunnit, and so does Guttenberg, but the fun comes in as we watch him go after the creepy redhead who has been terrorizing the women of Baltimore. Rated R.

Platoon is unequivocally, absolutely and without exception the best war movie ever made. It makes all those Rambo, revisionist films look like the fairy tales they really are. Director Oliver Stone presents the Viet Nam War as the dirty, irrational and bloody proof that war isn't a romantic escapade. Tom Berenger and Willem Dafoe are standouts as opposing sergeants, one representing civilization and the other barbarism in a movie that should not be missed by anyone over the age of 10. Rated R.

Radio Days is Woody Allen's sentimental tribute to the glory days of radio in the 40s. A series of vignettes tied together with wonderful old tunes and disarming characters, this is one of the rare films that will give you goosebumps as you laugh. Perhaps not one of his most "important" films, but certainly his warmest.

Outrageous Fortune takes Bette Midler and Shelley Long on the road as these "pals" seek out the man who done them wrong. Bumpy, raw and funny, the riotous dialogue is brought to life by prissy Long and vulgar Midler in one of the best cinematic couplings in years. This is a side-splitting success. Rated R.

Little Shop of Horrors is an up-beat, be-bop of a musical that has successfully survived the transfer from a 1960 cult movie to a musical stage production and now back to a movie that is adapted from the play. The plot, about the weird relationship between a carnivorous plant and a schmucky

Jewish florist's assistant isn't the key here, but the talented cast and finger-snapping songs are. The only problem is that the glitzy ending loses the gritty humor of both the original movie and the play. Rated PG-13.

Crimes of the Heart is a bittersweet, funny and eccentric adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize winning play, and is the best adaptation to come out of Hollywood this year. Diane Keaton, Jessica Lange and Sissy Spacek let the laughs roll off each other as three sisters who are reunited when one of them shoots her husband. Rated PG.

Northeast Wart Clinic

Laser Surgery for Warts

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of the intense heat generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The Laser produces a mini-made light that has only one color and does not produce any undesirable radiation. The Laser we use is a Carbon-Dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical Lasers.

In our office we now use this laser technology in the removal of warts and other skin lesions of the hands, feet, genitals and other body areas. Warts to be removed are identified, anesthetized with local anesthesia and "lased" with short bursts of laser light. Not only does the laser remove the warty tissue, but it also stops the bleeding and prevents the swelling that usually results in post-operative discomfort. The procedure is very effective, with minimal discomfort and limitations.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

There is more than fun, frivolity and fezzes with the "Shriners." They support more than 20 hospitals in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. The Shriners, "God Love Them," maintain these medical facilities, (like the Burns Hospital in Boston) with their dues and fund raising activities. Folks, this is almost unbelievable in this era of sky rocket medical costs, the charge for medical services is absolutely "zero." One does not have to be a kin of a Shriner, the doors are "open" to children of all races and ethnic backgrounds and I repeat it's all free of charge. Shriners everywhere, Woodchips wants everyone to know, "you're wonderful."

Strangers show up when "they" need you — "friends" when you need them.

When I was a kid, we played games, (which some of you may recall with fond memories) like "Relevé," "Duck on the Rock," and, of course the one game I hated, "Hide and Seek." I hated that game because I'd go and hide and no one would bother to look for me. Boy! What that can do to ruin a person's ego. My Aunt Nina, asked a travel agent if she could get to Niagara Falls by Buffalo? The man smiled then said, "At your age ma'am you would be better off going by bus."...North Reading Transcript's Advertising Manager Albert E. Sylvia Jr., congratulated the Transcript's staff artist, Carol Hood for designing an award winning ad. The award was presented by the New England Press Association at their annual banquet in Cambridge...Not advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark — you know what you are doing but no one else does.

My wife stopped in at Andrea's House of Pizza in North Reading and ordered one of their famous delicious pizzas. "How do you want it cut, six or eight pieces," asked the genial counterwoman? "You better make it six, I'm on a diet," she replied. Woodchips congratulates Rev. Joseph Flynn, Parochial Vicar at St. Theresa Church of North Reading who celebrated the 25th anniversary of his ordination Sunday, Feb. 1. There were two "men of the cloth" in my family background, my grandfather (who was a tailor and Greek Scholar) and the late Fr. Jeremiah Murphy, my mother's uncle.

Angelo Quaganti, my cousin, brought a pair of pants to be mended. My grandfather asked, "Eu-rip-i-des?" "Yes," replied Angelo, who knew as much as Greek as he did, "Eu-men-i-des?" Fr. Murphy loved to see an Irish Sunday collection, "All Green." One Sunday he explained to the people that his sermon would be very short. He said that someone had given him a puppy that got into his study and chewed up his notes. My cousin, David O'Donnell, said to him after Mass, "Father, if that dog ever grows up to have puppies, I would like to have one, to present to my parish church's pastor."

This chip is for the young at heart — and that's everyone who likes this column. (There are some who don't like Woodchips, maybe I'll win them over now.) "O-Hi-O, How are yee? Why did della-ware a new-jersey? I-da-ho but Al-ask-a." Did ten-a-see what ark-an-saw? Vir-gin-ia and Lou-is-e-anna on Maine St. with Ken-tuck-y and Harry-Zona?" Folks, someone with a "Butterfly net is ringing, my doorbell."

My cousin Michael DeLuca was one of those handsome young men patrolling Revere Beach last summer as a lifeguard. They, with their counterparts, the beautiful young women lifeguards were ever on the alert to rush into the surf and help or carry a disabled swimmer to safety. I was a lifeguard years ago but, I was not as handsome as Michael or any others either. What I failed in "looks" I made up in power as a swimmer, having learned from the masters, Joseph Rossetti and Max Friedman, both of sainted memory. One day a frantic cry for help brought instant responses as my buddy and I rushed to the rescue. Because of my swimming ability I reached the young lady calling for help, first. She took one look at me and whacked me over the head with her waterwings. "Get lost, you creep," she shouted, I want that good looking guy to save me." He carried her to the shore where her parents greeted him with, "You saved our daughter, marry her and we'll give you have interest in our drugstore."

Folks, somewhere in Wilmington or Tewksbury there's a guy dispensing pills in a little corner drugstore. There's one pill he can't trade, sell or give away — it's that little lady who hit me over the head with her B-cup water wings twenty years ago. Two weeks later I saved a little six year old boy from drowning. I carried him out of the water to a waiting crowd of people who greeted me as a hero. About a half-hour later a woman asked me, "are you the one who saved my little Johnny?" "Yes lady," I replied, "but please, no drugstores, no money or awards." "What the heck are you talking about, what I want to know is, what the heck did you do with his cap?"

France wants to purchase the Rock of Gibraltar, and in honor of Charles DeGaulle, the late President of France, will be renamed, "The Gail Stone." The goal of a happy marriage should be, "not" to think alike but to think "together."

I was invited to a "nudist wedding" and I can't go — I haven't got a thing to wear. I called the weatherman last week and told him that I couldn't go to work one day, because of his six inches of "partly cloudy."

Father Time married Mother Nature and they had "Four Seasons." A 72-year-old neighbor of mine married a beautiful 21-year-old blond bombshell. "How in the world did you do it," I exclaimed. "Nothing to it," he said, "I told her I was 90." A "halo" doesn't have to slip very far to become a "noose." "After reading your column every week, I think that you should stand in front of a "cannon" and be hit between the "eyes" — "Cannonized."

A horse pulling a wagon loaded with cow-manure was slowly winding its way on a road in Danvers. As the wagon came abreast of two inmates sitting on a wall, they asked the farmer on the wagon, "Watcha got there?" "Cow-manure" replied the farmer. "Watcha going to do with it?" "Put it on my strawberries." One of the gentlemen sitting on the wall turned to the other and said, "we put cream on our strawberry - and - we're supposed to be nuts."

DOG OWNERS ALERT

Dog owners are advised to keep a close check on their pets especially during the next few weeks to avoid wildlife-related problems, according to the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife.

A statewide dog restraining order is in effect requiring dog owners to have their animals under control at all times.

Established to prevent free-roaming dogs from harassing deer already stressed by cold, snow and scarcity of food, this order also protects other wildlife subject to harassment by uncontrolled dogs.

This is especially important under snow conditions as dogs are able to negotiate on top of a snow crust while sharp-hooved deer break through snow crusts and are either unable to escape or use an excessive amount of energy to do so. This energy drain is especially dangerous to pregnant does which have a naturally high energy need and which may find appropriate food hard to find.

Under terms of the order, dogs found chasing deer may be shot by state police or environmental law enforcement officers. Protect your pet — keep your dog under control at all times.

AMATEUR RADIO

Prospective amateur radio operators, ages 14 and up, are invited to attend a free ten week course beginning Feb. 20. The course, which will be preparation for the FCC Novice license, is sponsored by the Billerica Amateur Radio Society, whose membership includes operators from the greater Lowell and Greater Lawrence areas.

Amateur radio is a way to tune in the entire world and at the same time, perform a community service. Gear may cost as little as $100.

Classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Honeywell, Concord Road, Billerica. For additional information, call Pat 488-8144, Clair 256-4602, or Ken 862-0190.

NURSING HOME GUIDES

Cooperative Metropolitan Ministries, in conjunction with a number of churches and temples, has produced four resource guides to nursing homes covering areas east, south, west, and north of Boston. For copies of the guides, contact Cooperative Metropolitan Ministries, 474 Centre Street, Newton, Ma. 02158, or call 244-3650. $2 donation for postage and handling is requested per copy.

DRAWING NATURAL HISTORY

A basic introduction to some of Concord's plants and animals and how to draw them will meet for two Tuesday evening sessions, March 3 and 10 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Cost for the workshop is $24 (non-members), $21.60 (members) with a $10 materials fee. For more information and to register call the Emerson Umbrella Center for the Arts, 40 Stow Street, Concord (phone 371-0820).

TO TURN OVER

Tufts Arena Theater will present David Hare's Fanshen immediately followed by a lecture by William Hinton on Wednesday, February 25, at 7 p.m.

Fanshen is David Hare's dramatization of William Hinton's landmark book Fanshen: A Documentary of Revolution in a Chinese Village. Mr. Hinton arrived in Long Bow Village as an observer with the Communist Party Work Team portrayed in the play. Fanshen is based upon Mr. Hinton's notes from that experience.

Fanshen is an accurate record of what happened in Long Bow, located four hundred miles south-west of Peking. Every revolution creates new words; the Chinese revolution created a whole new vocabulary. A most important word in this vocabulary was 'fanshen'. Literally it means 'to turn the body' or 'to turn over'. To China's hundreds of millions of landless and land-poor peasants it meant to stand up, to throw off the landlord yoke, to gain land, stock, implements and horses. But it also meant much more than this. It meant to enter a new world. It is the story of how the peasants of Long Bow built a new world.

Mr. Hinton will attend the February 25 show of Fanshen and will be accompanied by Wang Jin Hong, the current mayor of Long Bow. Mr. Hinton's lecture will immediately follow the show. Tickets are $3.00. The curtain for the Wednesday night show will be 7 p.m.

Fanshen will also be presented on Tuesday, February 24 through Saturday, February 28, with all shows except the Wednesday night performance starting at 8 p.m. Tickets are $1.00 on Tuesday, $3.00 on Wednesday and Thursday, and $4.00 on Friday and Saturday. The Box Office hours are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call 381-3493.

SPORTS SHORTS

Here's one to think about when you're watching the 1988 Winter Olympics: In the 1984 Olympics at Sarajevo, U.S. skiers won a total of five medals, more than any other country that participated.

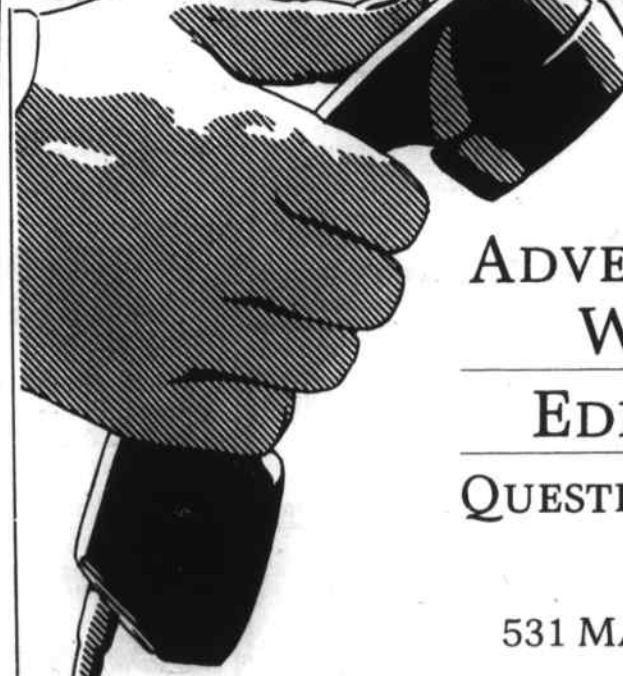

One thing you'll see less of at the next Olympics: injuries. That's due to a sportsmedicine program to improve the overall fitness of the U.S. Ski Team. Four inter-related services aid the skiers: research, psychological testing, education and medical service. Shaklee Corporation is program sponsor and official nutrition consultant to the team.

One of the most innovative facets of training these days is wind tunnel testing, a highly technical approach to determine aerodynamic variables of both alpine and nordic skiing. Skiers train at wind speeds of 60 miles per hour, simulating actual downhill course conditions.
